

Flight to safety

Airman's wife returns to States

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Desire Thornton, wife of airman 1st class Charles Thornton, returned to her parents' home in Bay St. Louis Tuesday night after spending two fearful weeks in the Middle East.

Concern for her safety and that of her children caused her to leave her home and husband at Incirlik Air Base, eight miles from Adana, Turkey and 150-200 miles from the Iraqi border. The Thorntons have lived at Incirlik for the past 18 months.

Still visibly shaken, Thornton related her disappointment with the inaction of the United States military. "I wouldn't have minded (the tension), if they had started sending people home," she said.

Thornton's parents, the former Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett and his wife Joan, paid the $3000 for the commercial flights to help their daughter and grandchildren leave.

Thornton and her husband began feeling the threat of danger the day after Iraq invaded Kuwait, August 2. Not yet aware of the invasion, their immediate concerns were with a strike started August 3 by Turkish workers on the base.

Strike-related vandalism and episodes of violence were increasing every day. Meanwhile, news of the Iraqi military action reached the Thorntons three days after the invasion, through the Armed Forces Radio and Television station (A.F.R.T.).

Base personnel and their families were told little about both the strike and the invasion. Thornton said, "We were very disappointed with the lack of information."

Feelings of isolation increased as all passes were suspended during the strike. Thornton described the military's own confusion when "they came on the television saying Incirlik was in a war zone and then came back and said, 'Oh, we're sorry, that's wrong.'"

On August 9, Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney requested and received permission to launch American attacks from Turkish bases. The next day the Turkish government called an end to the workers' strike at Incirlik.

Thornton and her husband began piecing things together as they traveled off base to purchase three-day-old papers. At the home of Turkish friends they watched local T.V., and received assistance in translations.

They became aware that more American planes were present than usual, and they were armed and readied. FLIGHT—Page 5A

Board accused of partiality in road work designations

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Designation of county road work was a rocky subject at the Friday meeting of the Board of Supervisors as Shoreline Park resident Clyde Taylor accused the board of partiality.

Taylor said, "Different areas are given special treatment. I'm still in the same condition for 14 years."

Taylor claimed Lagan Street in Shoreline was in dire need of improvement.

The board said the county was not in the process of paving new streets, but currently is repairing those already laid.

Work at Necaise Crossing Ball Field was the source of a fee dispute between the maintenance and recreation departments.

Maintenance charged recreation $880 and Hilda Bourg, director of recreation wanted it returned to her account.

Bourg said, "Sam (Cuevas) promised to do the work without charge."

Cuevas answered that at that time he did not anticipate the extent of work needed.

The board cited a communication problem and requested that the two departments make an effort to work together.

After some discussion, the supervisors voted to have the money returned to the recreation department.

The Hancock County Sand Beach Advisory Committee presented two resolutions to the board.

The first involved securing permits to renourish the beach and drainage repairs from Washington Street to Bayou Cadet.

Approximately $10 million would be needed to entirely repair the seawall and refurbish the sand.

Supervisor Robert Peterson expressed the need for the county to "take care of ourselves. We can't expect to get much help from the federal government."

The second resolution dealt with a commitment of seawall and road protection tax revenues being used exclusively for the designated purpose, with excess going elsewhere only upon completion of all beach work.

The advisory committee chairman, John Scaife questioned the expenditures of the seawall tax revenues.

The supervisors agreed to take the committee's requests under advisement.

The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission received approval to proceed with master plan improvements for the regional airport at Stennis International Air Park.

Tax assessor/collector Edward Murtagh brought to the board's attention the problem with the tax status of Notre Dame de la Mer. A meeting to discuss the situation was scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 23.

Murtagh also requested the renaming of one of two roads called Road #527. The double designation confused emergency personnel.

The board named one of the two roads Joe Favre Lane, after the sole family residing on that road.

Ponder returns as Echo gen. manager

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Randy Ponder has assumed the positions of general manager and advertising director of The Sea Coast Echo in an announcement made by Ellis C. Cuevas, publisher and executive vice president of Bay St. Louis Newspapers Inc. last week.

"We are delighted to have Randy returning to our staff. Being a 14-year veteran of The Sea Coast Echo, he is well-experienced in all phases of newspaper management and production.

"I know he and his family will be welcomed by all of their friends and relatives as they return to their hometown," said Cuevas.

Ponder comes to the Echo from Bayou La Batre, Ala. in South Mobile County, where he has served as publisher of The Mobile County News and The Tillman's Corner News for the past three and one-half years.

"I am very happy to be back—

I always knew we would return to Bay St. Louis. It is home for my wife, Sherry, and is my "adopted" home. Our family and friends are here, and we have maintained close ties with them," said Ponder.

Vietnam memorial display at Echo

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

A full size model of the main part of the design featuring how the faces of Mississippians killed in the Vietnam War will be on display Monday and Tuesday at the The Sea Coast Echo office at 124 Court St., Bay St. Louis, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Bay St. Louis attorney Henry Cook serves as chairman of the Mississippi Vietnam Veterans Memorial Committee, which has been authorized to construct a memorial on a one acre site at Biloxi's Point Cadet to honor the 637 Mississippians killed in the war.

The model shows how the display will contain a photograph of each Mississippian killed. The photograph will be laser engraved in granite atop a handblown glass shelf containing memorabilia placed by visitors and the veteran's family members.

A shroud will cover the entire memorial on ceremonial days such as Memorial Day and Veterans Day.

The committee is now in the process of acquiring good photographs and information including names, dates of death, proofs of Mississippi residency and that the veterans were killed in Vietnam.

Records indicate there were four Hancock Countians killed in the Vietnam War. Cook reports his committee is in need of information from their families as well as others from across the state.

All photographs and information should be sent to the Mississippi Vietnam Veterans Memorial Committee, Inc. P.O. Box 721, Biloxi, MS 39533-0721, or call 388-7211.

Sherry was recently hired as special education program developer for the Bay St. Louis-Waveland and Hancock County public school systems. The couple has two children, Ashley, 8, who will be in the third grade, and Jace, 5, a kindergartner at North Bay Elementary.

"We plan to be heavily involved in community activities," said Ponder, who plans to renew membership in the Rotary Club and Chamber of Commerce. The family will attend Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church.

While in Alabama, he was on the board of directors of the Bayou LaBatre and Tillman's Corner Chambers of Commerce and the Alabama Newspaper Advertising Service. His family has served as host for Mobile area Junior Miss contestants for three years.

Ponder started as production manager at The Sea Coast Echo in 1973 and served in several capacities in subsequent years, including advertising and general manager as well as publisher of The Stone County Enterprise. Ponder began his newspaper career in 1970 at the Daily Mountain Eagle, Jasper, Ala.

Academic year to start for city, county schools

Special to the Echo

School is about to begin in Hancock County, with opening dates set for Aug. 20 for the Bay St. Louis-Waveland system and Aug. 27 for Hancock County.

Both local school systems have expanded their facilities in size and curriculum. Both Hancock and Bay St. Louis are finishing construction on new facilities, with Hancock's building of a junior/senior high school at Stennis Airpark off Hwy. 603 and Bay High School's construction of a liberal arts building.

Additional courses and services offered include:

Hancock High School—gifted program (grades 7 through 12), home economics and technical education (grade 8), business computer applications and diversified technology courses (grade 8) and a job counselor (grades 11 and 12).

Bay High School—in-school suspension program (grades 7 through 12), study hall for students having trouble with math (grade 8, Chapter I), and computer literacy (grade 8).

Mississippi's Compulsory Attendance Law remains as it was during the 1989-1990 school year. Children who have turned six years old by September 1 of the current school year, and those not yet 17, must attend school. Students who turn 17 during the current school year must complete the year.

Hancock County attendance officers Yvonne Landry and Frank McNeil remind parents that all children do not do well in regular school settings. In these instances, alternatives will be sought by the school and district attendance officers to aid the full development of the child's potential.

Landry and McNeil urge parents to become more involved in their children's education by participating in school activities such as joining the schools' PTOs and by meeting and keeping in touch with teachers during the school year.

The officers stated, "These things are vitally important in the development of your child intellectually, emotionally and socially. Please remember, you as a parent must exhibit to your children that you value a good education for them. Thus, they will put forth the effort needed to succeed."

"You as parents can make a difference."

Landry and McNeil also reminded those involved in private, church and home education school programs that certificates of enrollment must be filled out on each child who is under the compulsory attendance law. These cards can be obtained at the Hancock County Youth Court and must be returned no later than September 15.

Landry and McNeil can be contacted at the Hancock County Youth Court at 467-7945 or at Hancock High School, 467-2251, Ext. 520, between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

GED classes available at new Hancock school

Hancock High School will offer GED preparatory classes Mondays and Tuesdays 9 a.m. to noon and 7 to 9 p.m., starting Sept. 17.

The night classes will offer hands-on computer classes. Anyone wishing to attend or to obtain further information about the program should contact David Kopf at Hancock High School, 467-2251.

Franckiewicz named to national committee

Senator Vic Franckiewicz Jr. of Bay St. Louis has been named to the Arts, Tourism and Cultural Resources Committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL).

The appointment was made by Lee A. Daniels of Illinois, NSCL president. The panel is part of NCSL's Assembly on the Legislature, which serves as a forum for the exchange of ideas and information among state legislatures.

Franckiewicz, who represents Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties, is a member of the Mississippi Senate's Special Study Committee on Theme Parks.

"Serving on this national committee will provide me with a unique opportunity to discuss state issues with legislators from throughout the nation," Franckiewicz said.

"Tourism could be a thriving industry on the Gulf Coast. Because of budgetary constraints, arts and cultural resource development are often put on the back burner to areas such as education and health.

"I am anxious to see what methods other states have successfully used to revitalize their tourist areas and promote the arts and cultural resources," he said.

NSCL represents legislators and staffs of all 50 states, its commonwealth and territories. Its three basic objectives are to improve the quality and effectiveness of state legislatures, to foster interstate communication and cooperation, and to assure state legislatures a strong cohesive voice in the federal system.

BUSINESS

Ingalls Shipbuilding continues to increase workforce

Ingalls Shipbuilding division of Litton in Pascagoula has added 1,000 employees since March, lifting the shipyard's total employment to 12,700. The company continues to proceed to a previously announced 14,000 level by early next year, as a result of increasing production activity on the company's current $4.5 billion backlog of U.S. Navy and international shipbuilding contracts.

As a result of this buildup, the shipyard, Mississippi's largest private employer, has job openings for experienced structural welders, shipfitters, pipefitters and pipewelders, electricians, as well as qualified computer programmers, marine engineers and marine designers.

Ingalls' business backlog includes seven Ticonderoga (CG 47) Class Aegis cruisers, six Arleigh Burke (DDG 51) Class Aegis destroyers, three Wasp (LHD 1) Class multipurpose amphibious assault ships, three SA'AR 5 Class corvettes for the Israeli Navy, and the overhaul of the Spruance Class multimission destroyer USS John Hancock (DD 981), as well as a number of engineering and support contracts. Delivery of ships now under contract extends into 1995.

Lead shipbuilder for five of the latest classes of Navy surface combatants, Ingalls has delivered 53 major warships into the Navy's fleet since 1975, a major portion of the surface combatants delivered during the period.

Twelve Ingalls-built Ticonderoga (CG 47) Class Aegis cruisers have been delivered to the U.S. Navy's Fleets since 1982. The lead ship of the LHD program, USS Wasp (LHD 1), was delivered in May 1989.

Interested applicants may visit the Ingalls Employment Office, located at 1000 Litton Access Road in Pascagoula, or call 1-800-633-8758, toll-free, or 601-935-3805 or 3806, locally.

Local Jaycees chapter hosts convention

Today is the final day of the Mississippi Jaycees summer convention being held at the Diamondhead Qualidome Resort Hotel.

The convention is hosted by the Bay-Waveland, Biloxi and Ocean Springs Jaycees chapters. The Mississippi Jaycees hold quarterly conventions at various areas throughout the state each year to stay abreast of the activities in each chapter, and hold workshops and seminars to ensure future progress. They also make presentations of quarterly awards for outstanding programs at the conventions.

Jimmie Ladner, Bay-Waveland Jaycees president, said, "This convention offers the members from other areas around the state an opportunity to visit the Coast, see what the area has to offer and have some fun while conducting business."

Chambers of Commerce from all three coastal counties furnished the 300 participants with hospitality bags containing small souvenirs and informational material about the Coast.

Ladner said he anticipates great success for this convention.

At Garden Park Community Hospital, specially trained physicians are now able to use laser technology for gallbladder removal. As an alternative treatment method to traditional surgery, laser surgery results in reduced trauma to the body and less recovery time. That means less pain to you and instead of up to six days in the hospital recovering, an average stay of only one day. Like Juli, you may be able to have your laser surgery performed on an outpatient basis in our 24-hour observation unit.

Today we celebrate the 21st anniversary of the "nightmare" of Hurricane Camille.

I realize there are many of us still here who can recall this disaster, yet, there are others who may have been too young to remember or were not living here at the time.

So, I dug through some of our file photos and selected just a few to give you some idea of the destruction we found the next morning after Camille.

This is due partly to the young birds being caught by boys and some men, and nearly all the birds die when confined. It is a violation of the law for a person to have in possession, to catch, to offer for sale, to purchase, to transport or ship within the State or without the State, a mocking bird, the punishment of which is Five ($5.00) fine, or thirty (30) days in jail, or both. I volunteer my services to prosecute any person who catches or sells in Bay St. Louis a mocking bird, when anyone knowing the facts, will make affidavit before a justice of the peace against any person violating the law. ## LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sport fishermen should set example by obeying laws

To the Editor:
This is a response to a Letter to the Editor of The Sea Coast Echo, Aug. 12, by Joe Bourgeois about "rod and reel fishermen not getting a fair shake."

I have been a sports fisherman for 40 years also, but I feel Mr. Bourgeois is wrong for criticizing Bureau of Marine Resources agents for doing their job by writing tickets and arresting people for having undersized trout in excess of the limit.

I totally agree with him that "seawall gill netters" are wiping out our fish resources.

The BMR supervisors (not the agents) are, in my opinion, acting with both malfeasance and contempt of the State Legislature in not implementing Senate Bill No. 2776.

This bill was passed into law with the purpose of giving BMR authority to regulate gill net activity. Yet, at the last hearing on Red Drum management, that was held in Biloxi, I was told "face to face" by a BMR supervisor that "He was not sure he wanted to enforce a. the laws that the State Legislature passed."

So, fellow sport fishermen, we face a real dilemma. Apparently the supervisors of BMR will not protect our fish resources. We know the seawall gill netters will not protect our fish resources.

We, the sport fishermen, must protect our fish resources. The way to do this is to respect the law ourselves. Do not keep undersized fish. Do not catch and keep more than the limit. Condemn those who violate the law.

By all means, write your state representatives and remind them who spends the most money for licenses and related items each year. Most importantly, demonstrate through your actions that the sport fisherman has a greater degree of integrity than either the seawall gill netter or the supervisors of BMR.

Diamondhead residents charged unfairly for sewerage

To the Editor,
Growing up, most of us were taught never to trust anyone who wanted to "save you" or "protect you" from anything.

Diamondhead's Pied Piper, the newly formed water and sewage district, played their tune, "We will save you from future excessive sewage rates if you support us." We did, and danced, celebrated and blindly walked off the cliff.

Upon waking up we find our sewerage rates increased almost 800 percent in some cases.

Most of this increase is due to water used to keep lawn and landscape green during the recent hot drought. Little, if any of this water made it to the sewer line—so in reality we were charged again for the water.

Those who can afford it are adding an additional meter or drilling a well. When our monthly POA dues are increased to cover this new sewerage rate however, it will affect even these lucky people. In the meantime we are stuck with this newest consumer rip-off—robbery without a gun.

The building of a sewerage treatment plant at Diamondhead is long overdue. No one argues a raise in rates is necessary to do so. A more fair and equitable way of charging for this necessary improvement would be to build the plant in several phases—as Diamondhead's population grows.

This would allow for a lower and more fair rate now with the eventual phases cost being shared by more property owners. The few present homeowners should not be paying the entire cost for future users.

Diamondhead Water and Sewer District should rethink their plans and lower the sewerage rates immediately or Diamondhead citizens should stand up and fight back. We will not tolerate this abuse.

Limitation of Army size could prevent future skirmishes

Dear Editor,
Will 40,000 men be enough to stem the tide of that "mad man" Hussein?

If not, the next question is, "What does $300 billion a year buy in security?"

Our military strategists have had 10 years of planning since Iran, 10 years intelligence on Iraq plus nine years of the biggest peacetime military budgets.

Looking back on history, the U.S., British, French, Chinese and Soviets are all responsible for this. Creating the nation of Israel on Arab land, and arming it with high tech weapons were the beginnings right after WWII.

The British helped Israel in the first Arab War, when they'd had enough Jews in this country pressured our government to aid Israel...and so we have for 40-plus years.

Arming Israel, political backing in UN matters and Nixon devaluing the dollar caused the oil cutoff by Arabs in the 70's which in turn led the world to the greatest inflation ever known.

Our government also sold military hardware to some Arab nations. Those we refused bought guns, planes, tanks and missiles from others.

So we now have another oil crunch, more inflation, world tensions, our military at risk, the possibility of a shooting war—ask yourself and our leaders why?

Nations with larger armies than their neighbors' are too often tempted to use their military for overpowering weaklings (gun-boat diplomacy).

So as long as this world contains large and small countries (especially rich ones like Kuwait), poorer nations will be jealous in much the same way many of us are jealous of others with more worldly goods...resulting in burglaries, robberies and violence.

Originally the UN would have a standing army to quell uprisings, but world powers could not even agree on its makeup or whose general should be in charge.

Perhaps the UN (if it's ever going to work) should pick a number, say 100,000, and say no country shall have a military larger than that. And if the number is small enough, no nation can be a threat to its neighbors or to the world.

Does that idea make sense to

Discipline: Love and limits

What are your long-term goals for your child's behavior? Most parents want their grown children to be independent, self-confident, capable of making wise decisions and respectful of other people's rights and properties.

Self-discipline is necessary to achieve these goals. A self-disciplined person has the inner controls necessary for dealing with frustrations and the demands of daily living. The goal of parental discipline is to develop self-discipline in the child.

Discipline is simply teaching good behavior. It's something you do for and with a child, not to a child. You help children learn to think for themselves.

The approach or method you choose for this teaching may be critical to your child's emotional development and your enjoyment of parenting.

Because of individual differences, there is no one right way to teach good behavior. All the guidelines that follow will help you build self-control in your child.

1. Make sure the child understands what you expect. Decide ahead of time what the rules or limits will be. Keep the limits as few, as simple, and as consistent as possible.

2. Set the limits so that success is possible and then gradually raise these expectations as the child's abilities mature.

3. Give commands and suggestions in a positive way. Instead of saying, "Don't jump on the couch," try, "If you want to be on the couch, you must sit on it."

Some people think that putting discipline in a positive way is being permissive. Actually, positive discipline is based on the idea that children need and deserve guidance and direction from parents. If you give these guidelines in a positive way, your child will be more apt to cooperate with you.

4. Making choices gives the child valuable experience in decision making; however, it is unfair to pose a command as a choice. If you say, "Are you ready to come in for dinner now?" you give the child the option of saying no. It saves time and frustration to say, "It is time for you to come to dinner."

Instead of "Do you want to get dressed now?" try "You need to get dressed now. You may wear the red or the blue shirt. Which do you want?"

5. If the child is behaving in an unacceptable manner, give a positive alternative. If the child is restless or overactive in the house, suggest outdoor play to run off some energy. As the child gets older, give him or her specific jobs to do. Be sensitive to the emotional needs of your child.

Poor behavior may mean the child is dealing with anger, hurt or fear. Encourage your child to talk about his feelings. Then direct attention to an activity such as playing with dough, water, or painting, where the child can express feelings in an acceptable way.

6. It may help if you take delicate and tempting articles out of a child's reach. You do not need to completely "child-proof" your house but a compromise between parent and child often avoids stressful situations.

If possible, insure that the child has some space that is just his or hers, where there are relatively few restraints.

7. In all you do and say, help children feel good about themselves. People who feel badly about themselves often do not even try to act as they know they should. People with a good self-image usually want to act right and will try to learn what is expected of them.

8. As a parent, you are your child's role model for behavior. Be sure that you are a consistent and good role model. Otherwise this quote may be true of you: "My child acts like me no matter how often I tell him not to."

The United States Achievement Academy announced William (Bill) Miller has been named a United States National Award winner in English.

The academy recognizes less than 10 percent of all American high school students.

Miller, who attends Hancock High School, was nominated for this national award by Barbara Ferguson, an English teacher.

Miller's name will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, published nationally.

Flight

Anti-aircraft batteries were placed outside the base and camouflaged.

Thornton and her husband had viewed films on a Turkish television station of the Iraqi government using gas on their own people. She explained, "My husband wanted me to get out in case they used chemical weapons," since only military personnel are issued the necessary gear to protect against such warfare.

When Thornton heard from her parents and received offers from family members to help her and the children leave, she packed some clothes and began the 33-hour journey home.

No guarantees of seating could be given on flights from Turkey, so Thornton enlisted the aid of Turkish friend Mehmet Cengizhad, who assisted as interpreter in Adana.

"I wouldn't have gotten out if it wasn't for him," she said.

The airline held the flight for her while she ran across the field carrying her two most valued possessions, her 3-year-old and 2-month-old boys.

They flew from Adana to Istanbul, where they spent the night in the terminal. The following morning they left for London, then flew to John F. Kennedy Airport in New York and finally to New Orleans.

Thornton arrived at her parents' home to find the trees bedecked with yellow ribbons of welcome, placed there by family and friends.

The Bennett home shares the anxiety of every family in America whose loved ones are in the military.

"I know Chuck had to stay," Thornton said. "It is his job. But now, he can do a better job knowing his family is safe."

Thornton expressed her concern for those who could not afford to leave independently and were forced to rely on the military. She said in a plea to the readers, "If people in the United States have the money to get their families out, get them out!"

We're Gulf Coast Rheumatology Associates. A team of specialists working together to treat your arthritis. And other conditions of the bones, muscles and joints.

Although our practice is very specialized, the conditions we treat are fairly common. Like Rheumatoid Arthritis. Osteoarthritis and Osteoporosis. Gout. Lyme Disease. Even chronic low back pain. We also treat less commonly known conditions, such as Lupus, Scleroderma, Fibrositis, Sjögren's, Polymyositis and Paget's Disease. And because even children can suffer from arthritis, we offer Pediatric Rheumatology.

Treatment is often as simple as the right medication. Or therapy. Because our practice is strictly limited to Rheumatology, we work with your personal physician to ensure you the most effective results.

you? Probably too simplistic. What would happen to all the generals and admirals? How'd we pump up the world economy?

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katie McGuire Caire

Fresh Boston Butt pork roasts, along with whole beef briskets and beef round and rump roasts, are the "stars of the show" these days at area supermarkets—at least the stars of the "showcases" or display cases in the meat departments.

If you quail at the thought of heating up the kitchen for a roast, either atop the stove or in the oven, think again; if you cook it once, you can serve it in some other way twice or three or more times, depending, of course, upon the size of the roast and appetites of the family!

There's cold sliced roast beef with horseradish sauce, or hot beef sandwiches, or beef chunks or slivers in barbecue sauce, or sweet and sour sauce, and so on. And, of course, there's hash and beef strips in salads or stir-fry as well.

Here's a variation of pot roast, from celebrated cookbook author and food writer Myra Waldo, from her "Complete Round the World Meat Cookbook." Its tangy accents, I hope, will please you. Here's:

JAMAICAN POT ROAST

3 pounds beef pot roast
1 1/2 cup flour
1 1/2 tsp. salt, optional
1/2 tsp. freshly ground black pepper

3 Tbsp. vegetable oil
3/4 cup chopped onions
1 clove garlic, chopped
1 can (16 oz.) tomatoes
1/2 tsp. marjoram
1/2 tsp. powdered ginger
Dash of Tabasco

Rub the roast with a mixture of the flour, salt and pepper. Heat the oil in a Dutch oven or heavy saucepan, add the meat and brown on all sides. Pour off the fat. Add the onions and garlic, and cook until onions start to brown, stirring frequently.

Mix in the tomatoes, marjoram, ginger and Tabasco. Cover and cook over low heat 2 1/2 hours or until tender. Transfer the meat to a heated platter, slice and serve with the gravy. (Six to eight servings)

And, from another good reference, Southern Living's "The Meats Cookbook" comes:

BARBECUED PORK SHOULDER ROAST

1 pork shoulder roast (5 lbs.)
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. celery seed
1/8 tsp. cinnamon
1/3 cup vinegar
1/2 cup catsup
1/2 tsp. chili powder

1/2 tsp. nutmeg
1 tsp. sugar
1 cup water

Brown the roast in small amount of fat, and place in Dutch oven or other pan. Mix remaining ingredients in a saucepan and bring to a boil. Pour over roast and cover. Bake at 325 degrees until done, basting occasionally with drippings.

And, while you're in the kitchen, anyway, why not boil a batch of russet potatoes—a special bargain at the stores just now—and use some of them in ensuing meals. Slice some of the surplus boiled potatoes while they're still warm, toss into a bowl and drizzle oil and seasonings over, with splashes of white wine and vinegar, cover and marinate overnight in the refrigerator, for a head start on the next day's potato salad. Add sliced onions and chopped green onions and sliced green and ripe olives.

Refrigerate the remaining boiled potatoes for use in other meals—such as an egg-potato-onion "fry," perhaps.

Or use some of the sweet potatoes, instead. And, don't forget to snap up a goodly amount of those slim and tender fresh snapbeans, or green beans, now piled up in the bins. Pole beans are in good supply, also. Briefly steamed, with a bit of butter, olive oil and seasonings, they're ever so tasty. You might combine some, chilled, with cold potato slices, along with sliced tomatoes, for a quick salad, adding vinaigrette or creamy dressing as you like.

Have you seen the "broccoflowers" in the markets? Pale yellow-green, or is it green-yellow?—they're a cross between cauliflower and broccoli, without the stems of broccoli, which many consider a surplus nuisance. (Not I, I slice 'em thinly, steam 'em, sprinkle bacon bits and enjoy!) I prefer my cauliflower white, and my broccoli bright green, but shall try the broccoflower sooner or later, I'm sure.

New crop red potatoes are in at the stores; and the bins are full of squash and eggplants, along with zucchini and cucumbers, and those huge, tasty bell (green) peppers and tomatoes. Seedless grapes, as well as peaches and nectarines, jumbo canteloupes, and Bartlett pears star in the fruit departments. Honeydews are in good supply, as are watermelons.

Pass schools name new faculty members

The Pass Christian Public Schools will open Monday, Aug. 20 with full day classes scheduled for students. All district cafeterias will be operating, and the school buses will operate to transport all students who live one mile or more from the school where enrolled.

All school buses will continue to be prohibited from crossing the Niolets Fish Camp Bridge on Wittmann Road and the Indian Bayou Bridge on Menge Avenue. This comes as a result of load limits placed on those two bridges by the Harrison County Board of Supervisors. An 8,000-pound limit would be exceeded by a loaded school bus.

According to Robert White, transportation supervisor, all buses will be routed through Arcadia Road, until a further study of the bridges can be made. All individual bus routes will run at the same time as last year.

The school district announces new employees for the school year. At the high school they are Timothy Farnsworth, teacher and band director; Keith McQueen, Glenn Williams and Stan Massengale, teachers/coaches; and Janet Young, teacher.

At Pass Middle School, new teachers are Mary Brooks Fletcher, Carol Armbruster, Denise Cross, Deborah Hatten and Janis Taylor.

At Pass Elementary new teacher is Cathy Allistoir.

Custodians are David Darby, Pass High, and Tim Brown, Pass Elementary.

Cafeteria workers are Laverne Ausmer, DeLisle Elementary, and Lydia Forrester, Pass High.

Delay

delay is to allow additional time for installation of lab equipment and cafeteria flooring at the new county high school.

"At first we thought we might have to put off the school opening because of the parking lot and sidewalks not being completed; but that's not the case. The parking lots are in," Randolph stated.

New students must report to the office of the school they plan to attend before classes begin. Two proofs of residency are required. These include filed Homestead Exemption forms, mortgage documents, apartment or home lease, utility bill, drivers license, voter ID, auto registration, affidavit and/or personal visit by designated school official.

If you need an air conditioner and a furnace, this is a two-for-one sale.

Is your old air conditioner ready for the deep freeze? Is your old gas furnace on its last legs? If so, you're fortunate. Because you can replace both dinosaurs with just one energy-efficient electric heat pump. And that can save you a lot of money.

But money isn't all you'll save. Because an electric heat pump cools and heats so evenly, you'll enjoy one comfortable, even temperature throughout your home. Summer and winter. And that'll save you lots of aggravation.

You'll also save on towels. Because an electric heat pump dries out the humidity while it cools in summer. And then in winter, it heats without drying the air the way a furnace does. So, you, your furniture and plants won't dry out.

Finally, you can save up to $150 annually on energy bills in a 2000 sq. ft. home: actual savings may be lower, or higher, depending on such factors as local energy costs and lifestyle usage.

Call your Total Comfort Pledge® heating and cooling contractor for more information. And take advantage of the only two-for-one sale that gives you more than one way to save.

LOOKING INSIDE

By Pastor Bob Guidry, Jr.

According to Webster's New Riverside Dictionary, prison is a place of confinement for accused or convicted persons.

Most of us will never see the interior of a prison, but on the inside of ourselves we are in the prison of guilt, disappointment and depression.

We have been taken prisoner by our own desire to enjoy the pleasures of sin. It did not start out that way, but after a while that is where we ended up.

This is caused by the same sin nature that is in us from childhood. Let me give you an example.

Achold is with his mother in a department store and he sets his eyes on a certain toy. He asks her if he can have it and she says no.

Thoughts of stealing it begin to go through his mind, followed by what he knows can be the repercussions. He takes it, only to have guilt and paranoia take away any fun he thought he might have had on the trip back home.

This is how I felt when the guilt of my sin outweighed the fun it was supposed to give.

The Bible says in Hebrews 11:25 that the pleasures of sin only last for a season. There is a time when alcoholic drugs or any other sin will not suppress the pain of guilt, disappointment or depression.

There is a downward spiral attached to guilt, disappointment and depression that can only be overcome by an outside force. When the spiral is not overcome it will often lead to contemplation of suicide.

The Bible says in John 10:10 that the devil comes only to steal, kill and destroy. He is trying to destroy your life today.

However, John 10:10 goes on to say that Jesus has come to give life and give it more abundantly.

I am having more fun now

Jesus will set you free

than I ever had when I was living in sin and suffering the consequences. Now I have fun and when I wake up in the morning I have no guilt, disappointment or depression.

Jesus in my life has made me a much happier person, and he will do the same thing for you. All you have to do is exchange your sin for the freedom of the Holy Spirit.

Why should you live with guilt, disappointment and depression, when you don't have to? Jesus loves you when nobody else does, and he wants to help you in your time of need.

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

God is unprincipled

Even the best of us so-called Christians are quite selective when it comes to choosing our inner circle of friends.

While perhaps excluding no one as the object of our charity, we heartily consider the poor, the underprivileged, the handicapped and the never-do-wells as part of our everyday or social life. We can only thank God for being so different from us humans.

Somehow, most of us have the sneaky, devious, frequently subconscious drive to be big shots, even while performing the most Christian and noble acts.

If the tone of condescension and patronizing is missing, the feeling is usually there anyway, often unbeknownst to ourselves. Without being willing to admit it, we like to feel that we are in control and that people need us.

By some self-delusion, we seem to deny constantly that there is the thinnest of lines between the plight of the people whom we are helping and our own condition in life.

Through some illusion, we appear to be denying the precarious fragility of our own creaturehood. Almost as storied Adam and Eve, we want to be gods.

Once again, we are most grateful that God is so different. Thank God for Jesus, who, though divine, considered nothing beneath his dignity, but took on our enslaved nature in order to be just like us in everything save sin.

Creaturehood, with all its dependencies and weaknesses, is what we in our insecurity and fear try to slough, to circumvent, to disown, while Jesus in his great love and humility embraced it entirely and lovingly. It took the security of God, made captive in human estate, to do for us what we could not do for ourselves.

As if that incredible move were not enough, he went one mindboggling step further. He chose as some of his closest associates many of the very riffraff of the entire nation. Clearly, Jesus was totally unprincipled when it came to choosing his friends.

Jesus, of course, is nothing more and nothing less than the human expression of God, who has no more principles than Jesus has in the way of friendship. So unbelievable, oh so marvelous for all us humans!

Neither the crippling condition of our body nor the deteriorated state of our minds or souls is a stumbling block to the God who pursues our friendship in spite of all. In fact, Jesus pursues us all the more if we are alienated from God.

We humans set social and other standards, various criteria and quotas for our circle of friends and associates. Whoever does not meet our criteria and standards is excluded. Happily, there is no such exclusion on the part of God, for "God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him may not die but may have eternal life" (Jn. 3: 16).

Truly, God is unprincipled. Otherwise, how could God tolerate me—or you?

We can only point fingers at the apparent defects of others, but we know for a cold fact the many deficiencies and evils which we house within ourselves. If God can stand you and me, then surely God can stand anyone.

Any and all of us can take great solace in the way Jesus went after the afflicted, the helpless, the poor, the disenfranchised, the sinful, the rejected and the despairing. What he did for all of them, he will surely do for any of us.

The next time we are tempted to feel condescending about any work of charity, about befriending someone from the wrong side of the track, or about socializing with a slum resident, we need to think about the Word leaving the bosom of the Trinity to save us.

He's got their whole world in his hands

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Education of the public concerning animal care must be the primary concern of animal control officials, according to animal control experts.

Ed Abson of the Waveland Animal Shelter found this out, among other things, during a recent four-day seminar on animal control and shelter management.

Abson said, "The public ignores population control until they hear of euthanasia and then they go, 'Oh, my God, you're killing all these animals.'"

According to a recent report, 249 animals were destroyed in July alone at the Waveland Animal Shelter, which serves all of Hancock County.

At the seminar psychologists were brought in to help the animal control workers discuss the emotional stress of the job. Abson said he was pleased that this was done.

However, he seemed uncomfortable in talking about the stress itself.

"We have no dog problem,"

Abson explained. "We have a people problem."

Abson had been a construction worker for several years when his wife began to do volunteer work at the shelter. Two members of the board approached him about a part-time job, and three years ago he became the full-time warden.

"Part of the job is to give the animal a little bit of attention and love before it is put to sleep," said Abson. "It's the only humane treatment some of them ever experience."

In the shelter's small office are Polaroid photos of various animals which have been brought in or picked up in cruelty cases. Abson was able to save some of the animals, but couldn't save most.

He said many people are afraid to report neighbors of suspected cruelty because of possible retaliation. Therefore, he encourages the anonymous reporting of any suspicion of cruelty.

Another area of education involves children. "I plan to go to the schools this year," Abson said. "If we can teach the children, they may grow up taking better care of their animals."

Abson remains on call 24 hours for bite cases or accidents where the animal is still alive. "It is all part of the job," he said. "I am performing a service."

Walking past the cages of animals, Abson greets each by name and speaks for the dogs and cats, saying things like, "Hi, my name is Spike....", while he gently passes his hand from nose to paw.

Abson is hoping to raise $32,000 eventually in order to build an addition to the now cramped area. He also intends to obtain time on radio and television so he can bring in veterinarians to discuss subjects such as treatment of diseases.

B.E.T.A. helps women help themselves

BY TRACI BONNEY
B.E.T.A. Corp. helps area women get off to work — off the welfare rolls and into the work force.

B.E.T.A. — or Better Employment and Training for America — is a local organization funded through the Job Training Partnership Act and operated through Gulf Coast Business Services. B.E.T.A.'s purpose is to work with local women who are willing and able to work but are having trouble finding jobs.

"We're just like a private employment agency, but our services are free," said Eartha Acker, who serves as recruiting coordinator and staff secretary.

B.E.T.A.'s 60-hour

training program is conducted both in-house and on the job, and includes workshops on appearance, hygiene, self-motivation, women's awareness and rape avoidance. The workshops are conducted by professionals who volunteer their time to speak with the women.

Women in the program also learn life survival skills, in addition to getting an opportunity to sharpen job skills and learn the Word Perfect data processing system used by many offices.

Acker said B.E.T.A. also encourages and assists women in obtaining their GEDs. The organization has video tapes that help the women in studying for the GED tests.

"We have some very qualified young women in here," Acker commented. "They're very sharp. Many have training and skills they would love to put to work."

In addition to providing a chance to sharpen skills, B.E.T.A. also gives clothes in a program called the "lending closet." Placement director Gail Martin said many of the women want to go on interviews but have no clothing suitable for a work environment. By using the lending closet, those women can find outfits for work as well as clothing for other family members.

"I'd like to let others use the lending closet as well, but the B.E.T.A. girls come first," Martin said.

She said women in B.E.T.A. are acclimated to an office environment during the course of the training. One rule with the organization is that the women must treat Martin and Acker as they would treat an employer.

"If they're late coming in, if they don't do the work, we'll drop them in a heartbeat," Martin said.

"We're not going to send a woman to an employer for an interview if she isn't going to do the work, or if she's going to be offered the job and turn it down for no good reason."

Of the 36 women who have gone through B.E.T.A.'s program since the Bay St. Louis office opened in January, 22 have been placed, Acker said.

One of B.E.T.A.'s success stories is that of Annette Williams, a 39-year-old mother of two who now works as a bookkeeper/accountant at Lagniappe Construction Services, Inc.

Williams said she was on welfare because neither she nor her husband was able to find a job. She went to B.E.T.A. because she wanted to get off the welfare rolls.

Williams is thrilled with her new job and grateful for the help B.E.T.A. gave her in finding it. "I think anyone who wants to get up off her 'duff' and get a good job should go to B.E.T.A."

"They sent me to a really nice firm and did everything they could to help me get a good job. I'm just really thankful for everything they've done for me."

Martin said the program currently needs both employers and women seeking jobs.

The B.E.T.A. office is open 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"We want the employers to know we have some very sharp people," Martin concluded.

National sweepstakes winners will be drawn after Sept. 8, the end of the promotion. No purchase necessary. Void where prohibited. See store for contest rules and details.
